Methodist Conference Sets Central City Strategy Talks

Methodist central city strategy, controversial resolutions, the need for more churches, and adoption of major programs on the mission of the church and Christian stewardship will be the chief considerations before the 113th session of the Southern California-Arizona Methodist Conference, tomorrow through Sunday.

Ministers and laymen representing 230,000 Methodists in 420 churches will attend the meeting on the University of Redlands campus, Redlands, California. Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles will preside.

Basic administrative unit of U.S. Methodism, the annual conference adopts the program and budget to sustain it, which the churches conduct cooperatively — over and above the local activities of each congregation.

The 1,000 voting members will be electing four budgets totaling $2.7 million for 1963-64, up 5.7 percent over the current year. Biggest items representing the board ministry of the church, include $480,000 for starting and aiding new churches, $389,000 to global projects of Methodist World Service, $320,000 to Christian education programs including support of the Southern California School of Theology, Claremont, and California Western University, San Diego, and student centers near the campuses of 22 colleges and universities.

This year, the conference will elect 10 laymen and 10 ministers as delegates to the General Conference of Methodism, set for Pittsburgh, Pa., April, 1964, and 21 laymen and 21 ministers to the 12-state western jurisdiction conference which follows it. The General Conference is the final policy making body of the church. The jurisdictional conference elects its bishops.

Among other highlights will be addresses by Dr. J. Wallace Hamilton, St. Petersburg, Florida, conference speaker, and Bishop Kennedy; ordination of ministers; reports from more than 40 boards, institutions and agencies; educational features and exhibits.

Dr. Edwin E. Reeves, San Diego District superintendent, will give a "state of the church" report on behalf of the nine district superintendents on the bishop's cabinet on the opening day. Final event will be the announcement by Bishop Kennedy of the appointment of ministers to their pulpits.
